The New York State Seal of Civic Readiness (NYSSCR) is a formal recognition that a student has demonstrated the civic knowledge, skills, mindsets, and experiences necessary to become an actively engaged citizen. The Seal of Civic Readiness distinction on a high school transcript and diploma

- x Shows the student's understanding of and commitment to participatory government, civic responsibility, and civic values;
- x Provides universities and colleges with a method to recognize and provide credit for attainment of higher level of understanding and skills in Social Studies;
- x Demonstrates to universities, colleges, and future employers that students have earned recognition for their civic knowledge, skills, mindset, and experiences; and
- x Recognizes the value of civic engagement and scholarship to school communities and society at large.

The Seal of Civic Readiness is an approved +1 Pathway to meet New York State diploma requirements. However, if a student has already passed five Regents Exams or has chosen a separate 4+1 Pathway, they may still earn the Seal of Civic Readiness as a stand-alone distinction on a NYS High School Diploma.

CiBE

The New York State Board of Regents and the New York State Education Department (NYSED) are committed to civic education that empowers all students to make informed decisions for the public good as members of a culturally diverse, democratic society in an interdependent world. Civic education facilitates the development of civic competencies, which are needed for a democratic society to flourish. Through civic education, students learn how to identify and address problems in their school and community. Students also learn how to demonstrate respect for the rights of others, respectfully disagree with other viewpoints, and provide evidence and counterargument. Civic education can strengthen the relationships of students with parents, families, civic leaders, organizations, and community partners.

The New York Civic Readiness Diploma Seal builds a strong foundation of civic education in New York. Since 1985, students in grade 12 have been required to complete a credit course, Participation in Government or its equivalent, to earn a high school diploma. In 2000, the Governor and Legislature amended State Education Law by adding a new section 120a, to require instruction in civility, citizenship, and character education. Participation in Government guidance was published in 2002 and was updated in 2014 with the New York State Studies Curriculum Framework. Participation in Government course aims to provide students with opportunities to become engaged in the political process by acquiring the knowledge and practicing the skills necessary for active citizenship (as) ...participation in government and in our communities is fundamental to the success of American democracy.

In 2018, New York State included the Civic Readiness Index in the state's Every Student Succeeds Act (ESSA) Plan as a tool to measure the performance of schools in providing life skills to support student success. The Civic Readiness Index will be a component of the College, Career, and Civic Readiness Level. The College, Career, and Civic Readiness Level is defined as the percentage of students who are leaving high school prepared for college, career and civic readiness as measured by diploma, credentials, advanced course credits and assessment results, career and technical education certifications, and other similar measures. One measure of students' civic readiness will be the attainment of the New York State Seal for Civic Readiness.

In 2018, The Board of Regents established the Civic Readiness Task Force with the charge to define civic readiness and develop recommendations for a Diploma Seal for Civic Readiness as a Capstone project. In January 2020, The Civic Readiness Task Force, appointed by the Board of Regents, presented their recommendations to the Board of Regents. Public comment was invited.

The New York State Board of Regents has adopted this definition of civic readiness. Eligible students for the Seal of Civic Readiness will be those who demonstrate the demonstration of competencies aligned with this definition.

CivK

Civic readiness is continuously developed throughout kindergarten through 12th grade education and should include focus on the following Domains:

CivK : Demonstrate a fundamental and functional knowledge of government, law, history, geography, culture, economics, and current events. These may include inequities within our democratic system at the federal, state, and local level. Students should know how to apply this knowledge to different circumstances and situations.

CivM Demonstrate the mindset of a participant in a democratic society. A civic mindset is a commitment to democratic interpersonal and intrapersonal values, virtues, attitudes, and beliefs and informed actions that promote and facilitate meaningful participation in civic life. It is an understanding of self as part of and responsible to larger social groups.

Civ& Act : Demonstrates a broad array of skills including but not limited to critical thinking, analytic, verbal, communication, media literacy skills. Students participate in a wide variety of civic activities leading to a range of civic actions. Students practice these actions outside the classroom and inside school on a regular basis.

CivEp Participate in developmentally appropriate civic experiences. Civic readiness should be developed in a variety of settings inside and outside of the classroom, across content areas, and for multiple purposes. Civic Readiness should be promoted by engaging students in relevant experiences that include students as active participants.

Dipl

CivK

Fundamental civic knowledge in grade level appropriate forms includes:

- x The structure and functioning of government, law, and democracy at the federal, state, local, and school levels, and how to participate therein;
- x Civil and educational rights and responsibilities guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution, the Constitution of the State of New York, and federal laws.

CiFAA

Critical intellectual and participatory civic skills students should develop and actions they take in grade-level appropriate forms include the ability to:

- x Demonstrate respect for the rights of others in discussion and debates, and how to respectfully disagree with other viewpoints and provide evidence for a counterargument;
- x Participate in activities that focus on a classroom, school, community, state or national issue, or problem;

- x Voting, volunteering, and participating in community organizations and government systems, such as community boards, youth advisory councils, etc., to promote continuous improvement;
- x Engaging with local officials and government institutions through activities such as providing public comment before a government agency, or meeting with public and elected officials.

CRCD&BM

DE

In a diverse society, governed by a constitution and laws that provide for individual rights, liberty, justice, and equality under the law, civic engagement will involve exposure to a diversity of people and perspectives. Respect for and commitment to the rights of others, informed and thoughtful deliberation about societal, political, and governmental issues, consistent with the constitution, the law, and the rights of others, is a responsibility of all citizens. The Readiness Initiative centers around creating positive social interactions across differences and includes exposing students to multiple perspectives.

EH

Civic engagement encourages students to explore issues from various perspectives, helping them to reflect upon their own ideas and opinions, building understanding of themselves, their aspirations, and consideration of the diverse people and perspectives in their larger community.

FL

Development of financial literacy is integral to student understanding of the rights and responsibilities of citizenship and participation in the economic and social lives of their communities. This includes understanding, assuming, and fulfilling one's financial responsibilities, financial support of oneself, one's family, and financial obligations to the larger community.

CR

The Culturally Responsive and Sustaining framework is intended to help education stakeholders create student-centered learning environments that affirm cultural identities; foster positive academic outcomes; develop students' abilities to connect across lines of difference; elevate historically marginalized voices; empower students as agents of social change; to support individual student engagement, learning, growth, and achievement through the cultivation of critical thinking.

CRCD&BM

To earn the Seal of Civic Readiness, a student must earn a total of six points or more. A student must earn at least two points from column #1 (Criteria for Demonstrating Proficiency in Civic Knowledge) and at least two points from column #2 (Criteria for Demonstrating Civic Participation) and an additional two points from either column. This chart is a menu of options designed to allow for flexibility. This is not a checklist. It is not necessary for a student to earn points in all these categories to earn the Seal of Civic Readiness.

Testing accommodations recommended in an individualized education program or section 504 Accommodations Plan must be provided for all State and districtwide assessments administered to students with disabilities, as consistent with State policy. Students with an alternate pathway for graduation approved by the Commissioner will be held to those schools' criteria.

See Appendix E for scenarios

Students who receive the NYSED Seal of Civic Readiness must earn a total of six issues. For example, students arguing the question: How did the Industrial Revolution move people? should analyze the development of policies and legislation and the impact they had on workers and society. The Extension Activities and Taking Informed Action sections of the inquiries are useful tools for including the domains of civic readiness into the research project.

Applicable NYS Social Studies Framework C3 Inquiry topics and compelling questions may include:

Did Shi Huangdi improve China?	Was the French Revolution successful?	Did the Constitution establish a just government?	Are students protected the first amendment?
How magnificent was Suleiman?	Is the Boxer Rebellion misrepresented?	What does it take to secure equality? (Debating Reconstruction)	Do we need the electoral college?
	How did the Industrial Revolution move people?	Was he vote enough? (Analyzing women s suffrage movement)	Why is the Affordable Care Act so controversial?

A 1e Civic Knowledge Research Paper asks students to:

- x Examine a question (constitutional, historical, political, and/or social) through the lens of civics.
- x Research primary and secondary sources that enable them to analyze the history of the topic, the structures that underlie or perpetuate the issue, and its relevance today.
- x Evaluate the impact of the topic on the past and its connection to the present day.
- x Present their research using written, audio/visual, oral, and/or multimodal formats.

Evaluation will be based on performance indicators included in Social Studies Practice A: Gathering, Interpreting and Using Evidence. The full evaluation criteria and process will be EM: In a Participation and Government and IB Economics class, students spent multiple weeks pursuing the question: How can I use my civic voice to impact public policy in my community, state, or country?

- x Students began by profiling the work of several young activists, familiarize themselves with their causes and methods for achieving positive change.
- x Students grounded themselves in the language of public policy and explored the concept of civic action and civic identity. Students grappled with their own civic identities and analyzed issues, ultimately choosing one was important to them and worthy of investigation.
- x Students researched their issue using the following supporting questions to guide their work: What information do I need to understand the issue? What is the history of the issue? How are people impacted by the issue? What are the opposing viewpoints of the issue? What data (polling numbers or supporting statistics) provides useful evidence on how the issue is a problem?
- x Students researched the public policies relevant to their issues using the following supporting questions to guide their work: What information do I need to understand public policy related to this issue? What is the current policy on the topic - federal? What are suggestions by political parties, interest groups, or others to change the issue? What are my thoughts, opinions, and arguments on the current policies?
- x Students developed arguments for policy change using the following supporting questions to guide their ideas: What change do I want to bring about on this topic?
- x Who do I contact to bring about this change? How do I make a compelling argument or plan to make a change?
- x Students ultimately organized their research and arguments into campaign papers that included the following sections:
 - o Identify and Define the Problem
 - o Analyze and Evaluate Current Public Policies
 - o Evaluate Alternative Solutions
 - o Develop Strategies and Solutions

A 2a Civics Project asks students to:

- x Complete a project related to a local, state, or national issue in which they gather, interpret, evaluate, and use evidence to better understand the impact of the issue on their community or other communities.
- x Identify, describe, and evaluate at least two current strategies, policies and legislation that currently address the issue.
- x Develop evidence-based claims and argue for specific recommendations, strategies or improvements that address the issue.
- x Communicate their findings using written, audio/ visual, oral, and/or multimodal presentation
- x Reflect on what they have learned about the civic life of their community by engaging with the project by explaining how the project influenced their civic knowledge, skills, and mindsets.

- x Complete a minimum of 25 hours of demonstrated service to the community

~~2b~~

~~2b~~ Service learning is an inquiry-based, experiential learning approach that teaches curriculum based objectives through meaningful service to the community. It is more complex than community service. Students engage in meaningful opportunities to apply what they learn to issues that matter to them. In addition, service learning involves investigation, preparation, action, and reflection. High-quality service learning goes beyond a requirement of minimum hours of service in a course. Students are required to use academic skills and knowledge to understand community needs to complete a project that serves the greater good of the community and to reflect upon their role as members of their community.

Effective service-learning programs share the following eight traits:

- 1. Have sufficient duration and intensity to address community needs and meet specified outcomes.
- 2. Are used intentionally as an instructional strategy to meet learning goals and/or content standards.
- 3. Incorporate multiple challenging reflection activities that are ongoing and that prompt thinking and analysis about oneself and one's relationship to society.
- 4. Actively engage participants in meaningful and personally relevant service activities.
- 5. Promote understanding of diversity and mutual respect among all participants.
- 6. Are collaborative, and mutually beneficial and address community needs.
- 7. Encourage participants to actively and unhesitatingly address community needs.

often completed with nonprofit organizations. Learning about the work of a community partner and its financial status, sources of funding, included part of the investigation component of a service learning project. Some schools organize community fairs and invite community partners to attend to help students learn about the scope of their work.

- x Reflection on service learning should occur prior, during and after the completion of the service learning project.

To earn points toward the NYSED Civics Diploma Seal for completing a service project, students are required to submit a reflective essay that describes the impact of their service learning.

Reflection opportunities must be incorporated before, during, and after the service experience. Reflection activities completed prior to the service experience can focus on helping students anticipate what their service experience will be like and what assumptions they are bringing into the situation. Reflection that occurs during and after the service learning experience helps students understand the actual experience in relation to their academic experiences. Reflection questions can help students understand themselves, the population they are serving, the social issue driving their service activity, relationship between the service and their civics knowledge, skills, and mindset.

- x The reflective essay/presentation assignment and evaluation criteria will be locally developed.
- x Schools are strongly encouraged to ask students to reflect on their service experience and reflections.
- x Sample questions are provided to assist committees in developing the assignment and evaluation tools.

Issue-focused questions:

- x Why is there a need for your service?
- x What do you perceive as the underlying issue, and why does it exist?
- x What social, economic, political, and educational systems are maintaining and perpetuating the situation?
- x What can you do with the knowledge you gained from this experience to promote change?

Client-focused reflection questions:

- x What similarities do you perceive between the people you are serving?
- x How are you perceived by the people you are serving?
- x What do you think a typical day is like for the people you serve? What pressures do they confront?

⁴From Center for Innovative Teaching and Learning, Indiana University at Bloomington, Reflection in Service Learning, accessed March 8, 2021, <https://citl.indiana.edu/teachingrces/teachingstrategies/reflonservice-learning/index.html>

Self-focused reflection questions:

- x What personal qualities (e.g., leadership, communication skills, empathy etc.) have you developed through service learning?
- x What contribution can you make to public understanding of this issue based on your service learning experience?
- x In what ways are you finding your involvement with this difficult? What have you found that is helping you follow through despite these difficulties?

Evaluation criteria for the reflective essays will be locally developed as they will reflect how the service learning project was organized. The evaluation of a student's reflective essay/presentation should include an evaluation of selected students' Civic Knowledge, Civic Skills and Action, Civic Mindset and Experiences listed in the Civic Readiness Domains.

CHARTER

This is a one year application for districts seeking authorization to grant the Seal of Civic Readiness to their own district students who

- attend a program outside of the district with an educational entity that does not confer high school diplomas (BOCES programs, regional secondary schools, and alternative special education, early college and programs/schools that enroll students from multiple districts), and
- complete the requirements for the Seal of Civic Readiness Program while attending outside program or school, as determined by the outside program.

This application only applies to students participating in the Seal of Civic Readiness Program in the entity listed below (#4). If the district wishes to offer the Seal to district students through district high schools, please see Appendix A for instructions on how to apply.

District participation is voluntary; however, please be aware that if a student completes the requirements of Civic Readiness +1 Pathway requirements outside of the district, and if the district does not sign this application, the district may not award the student the Seal of Civic Readiness.

The Seal of Civic Readiness is an approved +1 Pathway to meet New York State diploma requirements. However, if a student has already passed five Regents Exams or has chosen a separate 4+1 Pathway, they may still earn the Seal of Civic Readiness as a stand-alone distinction on a NYS High School Diploma.

Once completed and signed, this application should be sent to the entity listed below (#4). The entity is responsible for collecting and submitting to NYSED as part of its application to offer a Seal of Civic Readiness Program all applications from districts of students participating in the program.

Civic Ready students use civic knowledge, skills, and mindsets to make decisions and take actions for themselves, their communities, and the public good as members of a culturally diverse, democratic society. Schools, therefore, should provide students with meaningful opportunities to develop specific civic knowledge, skills, and to participate in authentic actions and experiences necessary for them to function as productive civic participants within their schools, communities, states, our country, and the world.

The New York State Education Department (NYSED) is committed to empowering the civic agency of students and ensuring all students achieve academic excellence of their prekindergarten – 12th grade education. The Board of Regents and NYSED have also emphasized this position in their Every Student Succeeds Act (ESSA) Plan. NYSED understands that the results we seek for all our children can only be achieved by incorporating an equity and inclusion lens in every facet of our work.

This Reflection Document is provided as an optional guide to help schools and districts as plan to offer the Seal of Civility.

Reflection

A Civic Participation Application of Knowledge Reflection asks you to show how the experience you lead or participated in has impacted your civic knowledge, skills, mindsets, and ability to take action.

- x You may submit final reflections in a variety of formats: a written essay, an extended response survey, a podcast, a video presentation or a creative piece accompanied with a rationale. Where appropriate and with teacher approval, your reflections could also be completed as a whole in small groups in the form of a Socratic Seminar or other discussion protocol. Based on the course or experience, your reflections may be weighted more towards one domain than another.
- x It is recommended that you reflect throughout the course, experience, or activity. Journaling, checks, community circles, and discussions with your teachers or classmates are all ways for you to continually examine your own growth and response to different topics and issues. Use reflection as an opportunity to reflect on where you are now. What connections can you draw between what you knew and believed previously, what you encountered in this course or experience, how those things agreed with or changed what you knew or believed, and where you stand here and now? What is your opinion? Have the opinions of others shaped or changed your own?
- x Keep in mind, going reflection makes the completion of quality final reflections much easier!

These questions outline the types of thinking that are part of reflective reflection. A reflective paper is a common format for college writing. Reflective writing is a component of civil discourse and civic being because it asks you to acknowledge that your thoughts are shaped by your assumptions and the cultural ideas that you bring with you today and that your beliefs can grow and change in reaction to new information. In taking the time to note the development of your own positions, you can better appreciate the positions of others.

Directions:

In a format approved by your school s SCR Committee, reflections should include:

Civics: A.1.2 (1-6.46) (1-5 0.002) (1-0.002) (1-5.9) (1-2.6) (1-1.2) (1-1.2) (1-2.6) (1-0 0 0) (1-0.002) (1-0.002) (1-8783

Here explain how this experience increased, contributed to, or influenced your civic knowledge. The following prompts are designed to provide you guidance. You do not need to answer all of them. Choose the ones that are most aligned with your experience and how it impacted you.

- x What do you know now about the structure and function of government at the local, state, and federal level?
- x

C# 4: CIVIC ENGAGEMENT

Explain how this experience affected your civic mindsets. You do not need to answer all of them. Choose the ones that are most aligned with your experience and how it impacted you. Areas you may wish to include are:

- x Through the lens of civic mindsets, what were the key takeaways, realizations, or lessons you during this experience? What experiences led you to these takeaways, etc.?
- x In what ways did this experience impact how you value equity, diversity, and fairness?
- x What perspectives or lenses are you aware of now because of this experience? How do they impact your analysis and understanding of contemporary and historical issues?
- x How did this experience help you to develop a sense of empathy towards members of your community with different positions or understandings than your own?
- x Where did you get the information that shaped your beliefs before? What, if anything, felt difficult or challenged what you believed? What, if anything, affirmed what you believed already?
- x How did this experience affect your understanding of the importance of fundamental democratic principles, such as freedom of speech, freedom of the press and the rule of law?
- x During the course of this unit, did you encounter anything that made you challenge your assumptions about what it means to be civically engaged? Why or why not?
- x What did you believe about your role in the civic life of our community before beginning this unit study? What do you believe now? Did it change for you? In what ways?

B#

Make connections to your life beyond this project and/or civic learning experience. Answer one or more of the following:

- x To what extent has this civic learning experience mattered to you? What lasting impacts if any have?
- x Where will you go from here? What are your next steps for continuing your work with or on this issue?
